

Kratos Awarded $3 Million Contract for Critical Infrastructure Security System

Contract Awarded by Large United States Public Agency Includes Design, Engineering, Deployment and Integration of Security and Surveillance System for Comprehensive Transportation Infrastructure

SAN DIEGO, May 9, 2011 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Kratos Defense & Security Solutions, Inc. (Nasdaq:KTOS), a leading National Security Solutions provider, announced today that its wholly owned subsidiary Henry Bros. Electronics (HBE) has recently been awarded a new contract in excess of $3 million to provide and support the security system design, engineering, integration, deployment and installation of a comprehensive security infrastructure and system for one of the largest public agencies in the United States. Work will be performed at many critical infrastructure and key resource sites for this agency at certain bridges, tunnels, rail transportation and communication hubs where advanced security networks are being deployed for video surveillance, access control and perimeter detection and protection. Details of the deployments and the specific agency are confidential, and enterprise wide security systems and visualization solutions will also be included in the areas supported.

Ben Goodwin, President of HBE, a Kratos Company, stated, "Our continued support of critical infrastructure for large public agencies demonstrates our ability, commitment and expertise in this important security domain. Our employees, contractors and suppliers are available around the clock to support the security needs and requirements of our country's critical infrastructure and transportation networks. We continue to be looked upon both around the country and around the world for our expertise in the critical infrastructure and strategic asset security arena. We at Kratos are extremely proud of the work that we perform for public security and safety, and the protection of our country's citizens."
