Sent to all Madison employees (a subset of Kratos) on Monday morning:

24 November 2008

Last week you heard from our CEO, Eric DeMarco, and Howard Bates, our KGS president, about the internal Kratos reorganization and today you heard about the merger of Kratos and Digital Fusion Incorporated (DFI), a Huntsville based company. I am personally excited about these two happenings and a little saddened because I will not be in the middle of making it happen because of my planned retirement at the end of this year.

A little over two years ago, Madison Research Corporation signed an agreement with WFI, Wireless facilities Inc, to be acquired by them. At that time, Eric had revealed to us his plan and mission to transform WFI a commercial wireless industry services provider into a leading provider of services to the Federal Government, mainly DOD. MRC was not the first acquisition by WFI but it was the largest at that time.

From the time we officially closed that deal in October 2006 until now, a lot has happened. We, in MRD, were busy doing our normal things of developing business and executing the contracts to the best of our ability plus integrating ourselves into the larger parent company WFI.

Meanwhile, WFI was busy buying and selling. They bought Haverstick and SYS technologies and sold their Wireless Engineering and Wireless Deployment businesses along with the name WFI. In the summer of 2007, a new name, Kratos, was selected for our company. Kratos the God of defense and security was a fitting name for the emerging organization, a defense and Security company.

Now is the time for Kratos to transform itself from a collection of small companies into a mid tier company that can compete with its peers. The weakness of most small companies is that they have breadth but no depth. The reorganization brings together our like capabilities to give us that depth. This is a good reason to change. Change is always inevitable whether we plan it or it just happens. I know there are some trepidations and angst. Many times we cling to the good things the way they were and look for the bad things in the change. Let me suggest that you look for the goodness in the change and remember the bad things in the past so as to not repeat them in the future.

The merger with DFI will significantly strengthen Kratos in the Huntsville market. MRD and DFI are both about 280 employees. About half of the MRD employees are in Huntsville; nearly all of the DFI employees work here. DFI brings our company new customers in Missile Defense; Aviation and Missile Research and Engineering Center and at Marshall Space Flight Center which add to our customer base. DFI adds depth in advanced technologies and engineering to enhance our capability to support and extend the life of legacy weapon systems. They give us strength in Modeling and Simulation to improve our opportunities for growth in that important marketplace.

I have met with some of DFI's customers. Their reputation is one of integrity, quality performance, and great customer satisfaction. This also adds significantly to our company's reputation.

Lastly, I am ready to turn the reins over to Richard Selvaggio. Richard has been with us since February 1996. I have watched him take a two person task and grow it to a $50 million dollar business in just over 10 years. This business will be in very capable hands.

I am excited for you and Kratos.
